178 was. The changes noted above have made important inroads in 565 the social system. For many political appointments Western [555] education has become a necessary requirement, and although many [871] educated people still come from the aristocracy, commoners too may become educated, may even excel in the schools and receive jobs of political importance as a result of their scholastic ac-• [866] complishments. Along with modern education, election by direct vote in the urban areas has allowed commoners to move directly into politics, as members of the House of Assembly in Kaduna.
This has been of little significance until very recently, but it represents a mechanism disruptive of the traditional social system. Lastly, the newly risen wealthy class, of non-aristocratic origin, has been able to take over, in some small measure, characteristics of the aristocracy through the use of their [556] wealth. Since they are able to afford to make the pilgrimage, they benefit from the prestige accruing from being an Alhaji.
[662] They also benefit directly from giving money to political parties and thereby gain political power.

178 The opening up of new avenues toward wealth, prestige, and 554 political power, the characteristics of the old aristocracy, 565 has resulted in an increasing number of individuals of commoner family who have been able to achieve these goals. In recent years such individuals have been rewarded by having important [645] titles conferred on them by the Shehu. Members of the Shehu's Council who did not come from aristocratic families have been [431] granted noble titles. This process has been furthered by the 567 178 [554] Slaves of the Shehu still hold the great slave titles of Kaigama and Kazella, and although slaves are no longer bought and sold, susana still consider themselves slaves and members of the household of present-day nobility. Nobles still continue to have chirs, and slaves ask permission of their masters before marrying.

178 565 555 It is among the great mass of talaka that the greatest changes have been occurring. New avenues to increased social importance have made their appearance in the last two decades. There are ways to attain political power today that previously [666] were unavailable to talaka. Election to public office at the local, regional, or national level is becoming increasingly possible for talaka, and there are a number of individuals who have become powerful and important in recent years, despite their talaka background. Education has made possible the rapid rise of individuals of talaka background. They have risen in power and in prestige because of their education, and the specialized occupations which education has enabled them to practice. In many cases they have also been able to use their position as educated professional people to make successful careers in Provincial and regional politics, thereby acquiring political power. 178 556 565 441 Finally, trade with the Western world has opened up new avenues to accumulation of capital on the part of the trading class of talaka, many of whom today are extremely wealthy individuals; and though this does not imply that an entirely new class of people has arisen in Kanuri society, it does mean that segments of one class of Kanuri society find themselves more
